

Whose Time?

New Normality

In the future we will increasingly go against an excessive exaltation of industry, urbanization and technology, that will be present during every single hour of our lives.

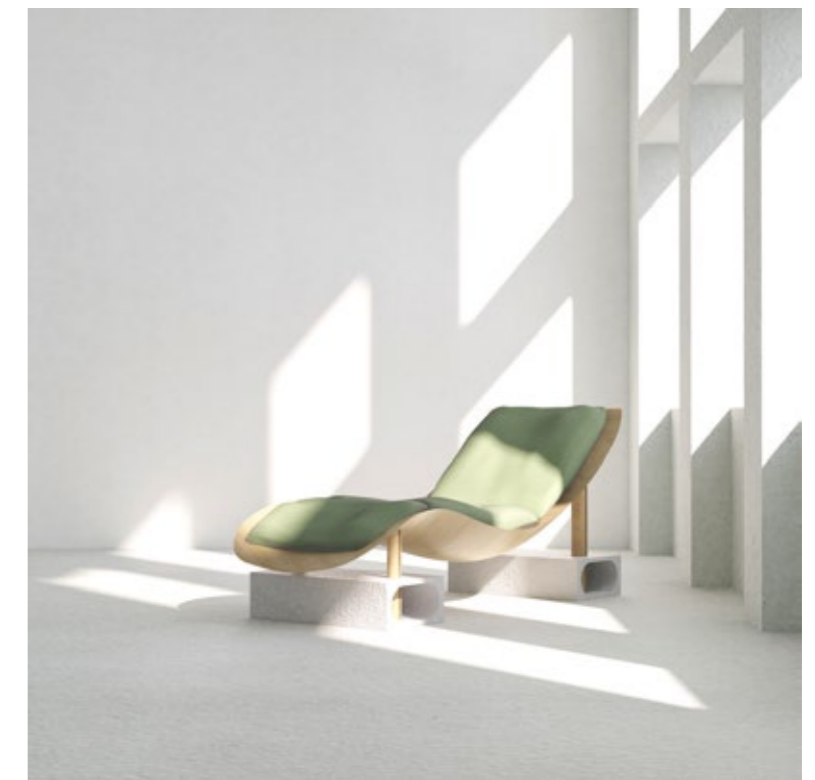

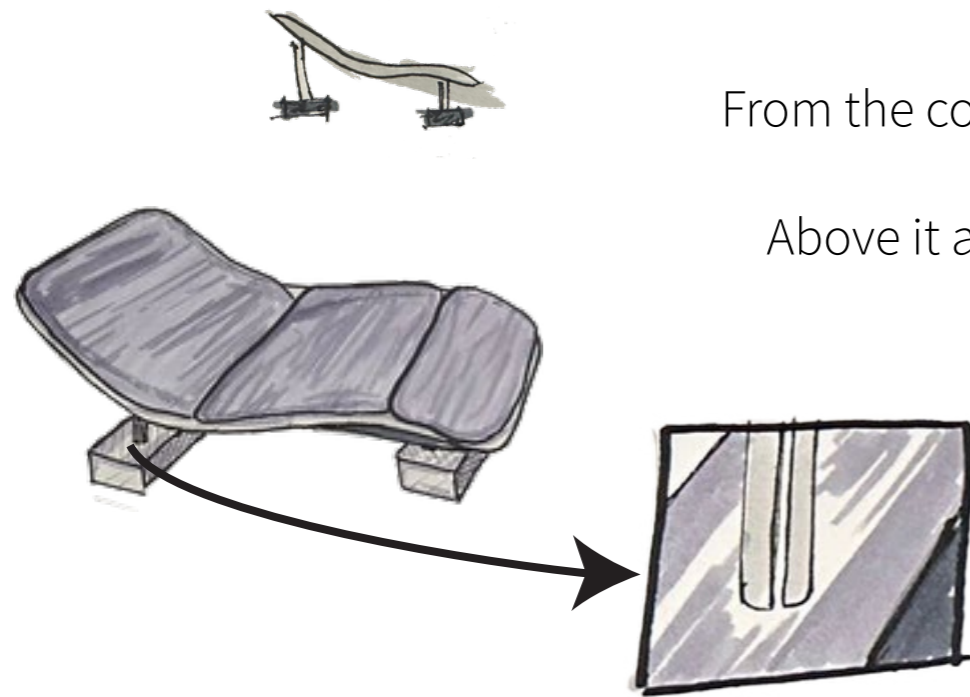

Because of this, many people will go in search of nature, and not often finding it outside their own home, they will try to take it inside their own living space, that will be more and more immersed in technology.

Plants, raw and natural materials are already being installed in homes, and this idea could also expand to objects, furniture, because of their missing.

Lawn - Chaise Longue

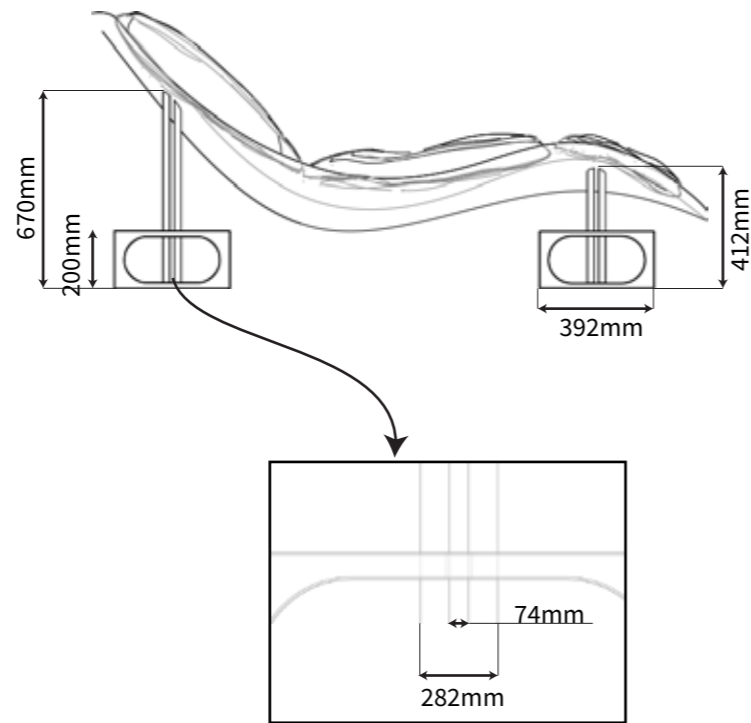

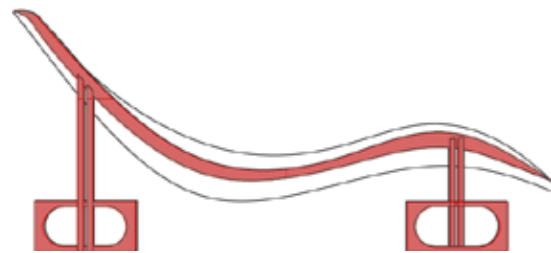

It takes inspiration from nature which is now increasingly suppressed by industry.
From the concrete blocks at the base, "branches" blossom that support a vast wooden surface.
Above it are installed soft and furry cushions, designed like nature, the fields, the grass.

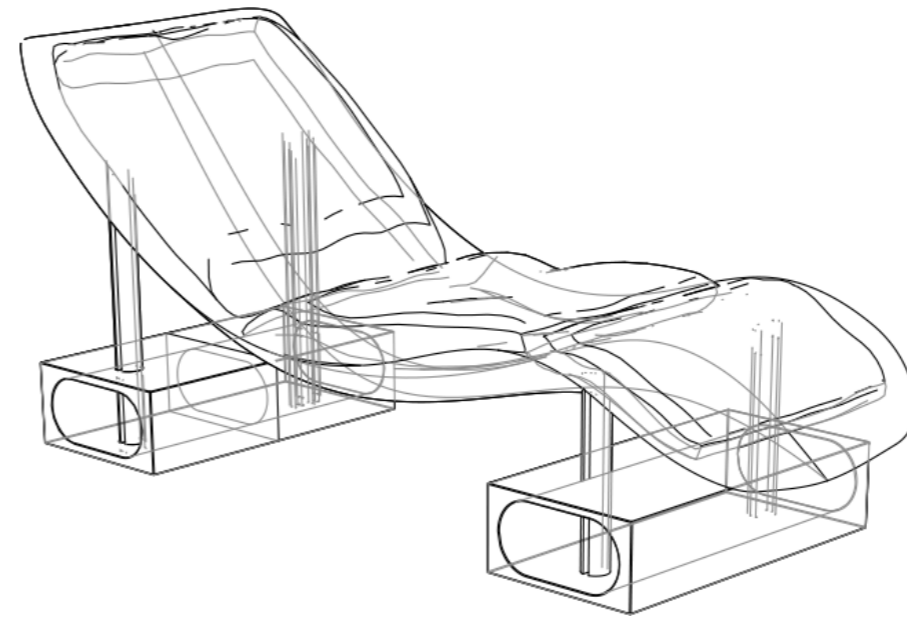

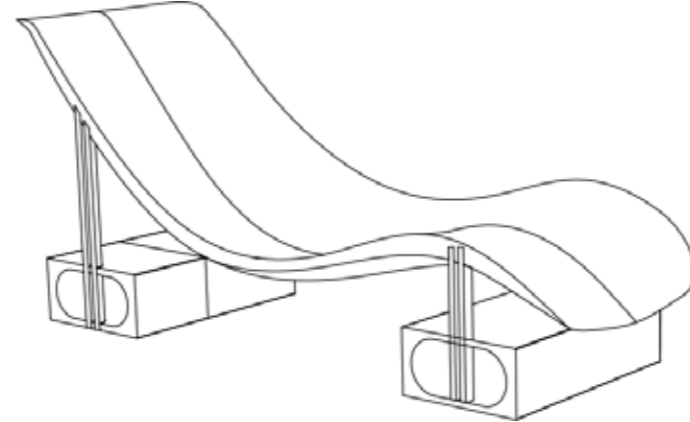

Technical information

Sect.A

*Dissected assometry view
without pillows*

Intersection designed in each component

